The global COVID-19 pandemic is having unprecedented impact on our societies, economies, and supply chains. As our socio-economic system adapts, businesses and their employees around the world are already feeling the effects, including in Indonesia. Minimizing impacts and finding a safe, responsible and productive way forward is the collective responsibility of businesses, investors, and governments around the world. In this webinar, we explore COVID-19's expanding impact by bringing perspectives from the Asia Pacific and American contexts, the risks that humans and organisations face, as well as offering approaches for achieving business resilience and adapting to the 'new normal'.
