Modern corporate governance, as laws and regulatory requirements mandate, asks the Board of Commissioners (BOC) and the Board of Directors (BOD) to take their duties of managing and overseeing the affairs of the company with due care and diligence. Among important Board Committees to help the BOC and the BOD effectively carry out their duties and responsibilities are the Audit Committee and the Risk Oversight Committee.

The spotlight on Audit Committees grows stronger and harsher as their responsibilities and actions grow more complex. Shareholders, the regulator, insurers, BOCs and BODs have all come to expect more and more from Audit Committees. Perceived missteps can easily lead to liability exposure and criticism of the company, its officers, the Board, and the Audit Committee.

Audit committees practices need to be evaluated and improved where necessary. The important task for Audit Committees is to adopt a program to significantly reduce corporate, officer and board liability exposure, enhance shareholder value, restore credibility and reputation, demonstrate diligence, and ensure the rights of other relevant stakeholders are respected.

On the other hand, BOCs, especially of banks, are increasingly looking at Risk Assessment and Management as a field of vital interest, partly due to the efforts of the regulator to make it one of the top concerns of banks and their BOCs.

Risk Management is also important in achieving the capital adequacy ratio mandated by the Bank for International Settlements. Because installing a risk management system is one of the mandated responsibilities of a corporate board, Risk Governance is a key element in any corporate governance process.
